AH (Laughs): I suppose it was Time Out. Time Out then was practically a Xerox. I think it was probably through Time Out... There's a ballet for pregnant ladies. Come along. There was a lot of pregnant ladies in Camden. Having got pregnant on Primrose Hill!

Where did you source the pregnant women from or was it all the women the men in the company had got pregnant? [Signe Lie Howell and Christina Toren were expecting]

AH: Yes.

JEB: So women would just turn up on the day and were given a set of instructions?

AH: This is pre-Ting really. There was Jane Clark and Robert Janz. We had three huge, striped sheets, American stripes. King-sized striped sheets which were on tees which you could carry around... the pregnant women had red umbrellas and were turning very, very slowly so they could be enclosed by these great, huge sails. You'd have all these sounds going on overlapping each other.

ALL ROUND VISION

A person stands in the centre of a hypothetical disc that radiates from them at eye level. The furthest distance one can see from any single position indicates the radius of that particular disc of vision. In many cases in an urban locality "all round vision" of the circumference of such a disc of vision will be obstructed.

I am interested in collecting plans of the obstructed discs of vision that occur from centres chosen at random anywhere and everywhere in London.

Enclosed with a page of instructions is a card with a circle printed upon it, its centre marked with a cross. These are to be distributed via the address lists of art organisations in London, and notices and a supply of cards placed in the foyers of public libraries and galleries. A thousand cards will be printed. Cards returned with completed plans to the address on the page of instructions will be employed in the resolution of this project.

Notices concerning the development of this project will appear in WALLPAPER magazine.

Bowman, Jason E

Jason E. Bowman trained as an artist, dropped out of being a cultural theorist, and tuned into being a curator and visual arts consultant. He rarely works or thinks alone. He was the co-curator for Scotland at the Venice Biennale in 2005 and is currently curating Anniversary - an act of memory for Monica Ross and developing the case for a retrospective of The Ting: The Theatre of Mistakes. He started 'making' art again in 2009.

Excerpt of review of Ballet for Cars, The Theatre of Mistakes Archive:

Whether seen as entities or as facilities, the cars in this ballet provided what was perhaps the apotheosis of the events at Purdies Farm, where, when the horns of those assembled sounded, a pillar of that sound went up, deafening the attendant drummers, scattering the surrounding performers, diverting the attention of dirt track competitors on the neighbouring common, and, at a distance of twelve miles, causing a freak tornado in Woking.
